

- Art Prices
- Art Market
- Artists
- Gallery Guide
- Art Calendar
- Museums
- Jobs

In the Air

Art+Auction's Gossip Column

In the Air – Art+Auction's Gossip Column

October 26, 2011, 6:06 pm

Show & Tell: Marilyn Minter's Splashy Silver Babies at Salon 94

6

Like 12

1

Comment

SHARE

Marilyn Minter's "Play Pen," 2011

The art queen of glitz, glam, and gross returns to Salon 94 with a new exhibition that has been two years in the making. While her current subject of interest may be the essence of innocence, her depictions of infants splashing around in decadent silver paint (with an abundance of joyous laughter and glee) is both a departure from the more adult content she has been dealing with and yet still the same attempt at exploring the human desire for pleasure. Also included are several large paintings of high heels navigating the same splashing paint, abstracted by the residue of the liquid into an aesthetic mixture of metallic sheen and vibrant color. Minter's new work doesn't cease to entertain, and if it is indeed her mission to explore the sensation of pleasure, then the work does nothing short than inspire it. [Marilyn Minter at Salon 94]

— Alanna Martinez

Tags: Marilyn Minter, Salon 94

Marina Abramovic Curates An Online Art Show For Paddle8 »
« See a Video About Maurizio Cattelan's Favorite Headless Chicken, Mike
Blog Home

Tags: Marilyn Minter, Salon 94
Art

6

Like 12

SHARE

Comments

1

Comment

1.  by Emm October 26, 2011 at 10:34 pm

This sounds like it's genuine art, that's worth going to see the show.

Add a Comment

Name (required)

Email (will not be published) (required)

Website

Submit Comment

- Connect with In the Air

- Search for: